Angel of Life (Some Sunny Night)

PROLOGUE

In 1993, a Chinese boy Mark Wang survived an aircrash at the age of twelve, and was paralyzed in both legs.

Ketil Moe himself suffered from a serious lung-disease and had his lung transplanted. With unswerving will, he believed that the impossible can be possible and became the "marathon-hero" of Norway.

AKT 1 Angel of Life

In 1997, Her Majesty Queen Sonja of Norway visited China and authorized the Royal Scholarship to Mark Wang, inviting him to study in Red Cross United World College in Norway. The Queen told Ketil Moe about her trip to China, and asked him to encourage Mark Wang with his own story.

AKT 2 Run for Life

With the concern of the Queen and the encouragement of Ketil Moe, Mark Wang learned to walk with crutches, and "Run for Life".

AKT 3 Our Dream

In 1999, Mark Wang won 2 gold medals in the 36th World Handicapped People Skiing Competition. The Queen received Mark Wang and Ketil Moe, they sang together the song Our Dream: Our dream will keep on crossing limits, will keep on being free, will keep on reaching higher; our dream is filled with joyful spirit, filled with peaceful fire.

To Mark Wang,

I hope your dreams will come through, and that you will be able to "Hold up the Blue Sky of Life" for many years to come. You are yourself such an excellent example for other disabled persons; they will look at to you with admiration, and follow in your footsteps! Good luck!

Ketil Moe

Ketil Moe from Lillesand in Norway, was born with the serious lung-disease Cystic Fibrosis. At the age of six, he was given few chances to survive. However, through a revolutionary training-program given by his doctors, he became the longest living person ever with his severe kind of handicap. With great help from his inspirator, the “marathon-queen” Grete Waitz, Ketil Moe completed 14 New York City Marathons, the last two with both of his lungs transplanted. He also started his own race for both handicapped and able-bodied, together with four times Olympic Champion Johann Olav Koss, called the “Race for Life”. Ketil Moe passed away dramatically after his 14th New York City Marathon in 1999, 32 years old.

His work and visions still live stronger than ever.

Jiapeng Mark Wang

At age of 12, Jiapeng Mark Wang personally experienced an airplane-crash accident, the young boy had ever since had to face life with both paralyzed legs due to badly spinal cord injury. After threatening of death, pain, fear, with determination of not giving up to stand up with his own legs to walk again, Mark spent 5 years at China Rehabilitation Center. With the dream to be able to come back to school again, he studied hard during these 5 years with help from his mother.

In 1997, during HM Norwegian Queen Sonja’s state visit to China, HM gave a special scholarship to one disabled student to study at Nordic United World College. After a competitive selection, Mark received this opportunity to attend Nordic United World College as the first Chinese Student among students from over 80 nations.

The airplane accident has made Mark both legs paralyzed, but he constantly challenged the limitations. During his first year coming to Norway, he won two gold medals from 36th World Handicapped People Skii Competition, he has ‘Run’ few times New York Marathon, and together with Norwegian Marathon-Hero Ketil Moe, they succeeded to open the first Beijing marathon for disabled people.

Today Mark continues working with Ketil’s ‘unfinished dream’ to encourage as many disabled people as possible to overcome their difficulties worldwide.

Zumulaiti, Uygur nationality, Bachelor of Arts, was born in the Xinjiang Uygur Autonomous Region. She lost the capability of walking independently at the age of two due to poliomyelitis.

As the singer for solo songs, duet songs and chorus, she visited America, Canada, Japan, Spain, Qatar and many other countries to perform. With mellow and fruity voice and profound accomplishment in self-cultivation, she decodes The Code of Life:

Thanks to kindness, life becomes beautiful

Thanks to love, life carries on

Thanks to compassion, life is endowed with value

Thanks to a grateful heart, life is filled with joy and delight

Yang Haitao, Hui nationality, was born in 1982 in Ningxia Hui Autonomous Region. This young man with a pair of large eyes has never seen light since he was born.

Although he lost his eyesight, Yang Haitao has strong capabilities of hearing, imitating and memory. Just listening to songs of different languages for several times, he can imitate them as same as the original ones. In the past five years, he visited more than 30 countries on five continents and sang famous local songs in more than 10 languages. Audience was all captivated by his voice.

In the stage performance My Dream, he sings the solo songs, duet songs and chorus as well as accompanies and dubs for Peking Opera At the Crossroads.

This group of visually impaired children rearrange and orchestrate music all by themselves. They play traditions and customs of different nations.

Since the latest three years, they have visited more than 20 countries to greet the world they cannot see.

In the spring of 2007, Thomas Stanghelle visited Beijing twice, composing the Opera-musical Angel of Life together with China Disabled People's Performing Art Troupe.
